Cash	9% one-year money market represents 3.5% real rates. Rates will only be significantly lowered with sustained anchoring of inflation at 4.5%.  Low volatility amidst raised uncertainty following the SA elections outcome and US elections later in the year.	Attractive short-term rates. Positive real rates.	Bonds and equities offer better value.	Money market yields are unattractive relative to long-term bond yields, but attractive relative to inflation.  Rate-cutting cycle is expected to begin during H2, placing pressure on returns.	Cash yields are decent. However, in most markets superior returns may still be garnered from bond markets.
	Neutral	Positive	Positive	Positive	Positive
Bonds	Bonds are trading closer to fair value now after the post-election rally. Real yields of 5% are still attractive from a portfolio point of view but would need some fiscal improvement and reforms from the GNU for yields to compress significantly from here.	Attractive real rates, but fiscal position is deteriorating.  Current yields discounting this risk, so we remain positive.	Compelling yields but risks and global rates uncertainty is driving continued volatility.  In our view, the bulk movement in yields due to a reduction in credit spreads is largely done and further upside would be driven by a decline in US real rates.	Attractive yields relative to cash and inflation.  Positive real returns are expected.	The fund is overweight in South African government bonds, leveraging their high real yields and strong margin of safety. On a risk-adjusted basis, SA government bonds remain attractive, especially in the belly of the curve, supported by a positive fiscal outlook aided by reduced political uncertainty post elections. Hawkish SA Reserve Bank (SARB) is unlikely to cut before the US Fed does.
	Positive	Negative	Neutral	Neutral	Negative
Property	Risk reward skew to the upside with base case providing an attractive yield supported by recovering fundamentals reflected in improving reversions and vacancies. The bull case upside skew would come from an earlier interest rate-cutting cycle driving growth in distributions from lower interest expense.  Fundamental drivers have turned, reversions and vacancies are now trending better.	Higher bond yields continue to put pressure on property.  Rental reversions are stabilising, but we remain selective in our exposure.	Interest rates outlook is supportive of property following significant weakness.  Global macro-economic uncertainty and local constraints pose risks.	Fundamentals in the property sector are continuing to show improvement. Valuations look fair relative to bonds.  The rate-cutting cycle is expected to begin during H2, positive for distribution and NAV growth.	Negative macroeconomic investor sentiment and high interest rates have dominated sector performance, both positive and negative.
	Neutral	Positive	Positive	Positive	Neutral
Equity	Reasonably strong earnings growth off a low base, driven by a cyclical recovery with current valuations that are not demanding. Structural growth from any potential positive impact of the Government of National Unity (GNU) remains uncertain and is reflected in our bull case scenarios rather than our base case outlook.  Local growth remains tepid and commodity cycle is mixed. Green shoots through improved load shedding, but emerging market/US$ cycle remains a headwind.	SA equity is oversold. A positive political outcome is driving demand.  A further rerating could happen over time if confidence returns.	SA Inc stocks have rerated following the election. Earnings growth is dependent on economic reform - particularly improvements at Transnet and Eskom. Select opportunities.	Large number of attractively valued opportunities. Preference is for strong balance sheets, predictable cash flows and resilient business models. Further upside potential is dependent on the GNU delivering accelerated reform and improved economic growth.	Positive view due to undervaluation. 2. Strong performance by domestic equities gaining support from anticipated economic reforms and recovery.  We continue to find attractive opportunities as we view SA equities as being undervalued on an absolute basis, and in particular relative to other emerging markets.

	Neutral	Positive	Global Positive	Neutral	Positive
	US cash is likely to stay high for next 12 months - maybe 50 bps cumulative loosening. Real yields of 2% are restrictive.  Non-synchronised cuts are more likely with economic conditions in the EU deteriorating faster.	Attractive short-term yields. Rand hedge.	Cash offers capital protection in volatile and high interest-rate environment.	Money market yields are relatively attractive and ahead of inflation.  Rate-cutting cycle expected to begin during H2 and will place pressure on cash return.	We are overweight offshore cash and have a small overweight to offshore fixed income, which is focused on short-duration assets.  US inflation surged, bolstering the dollar and postponing rate cut expectations to late 2024.
	Neutral	Neutral	Positive	Neutral	Neutral
	Inferior running yield vs cash with shallow cutting cycle seen. Fiscal dominance, re militarising, greening, finance cost will likely see bond yields higher for longer.  Positive yield curves can see 100bps of cuts with long bonds doing little.	After a sell-off in US bonds, it is becoming an attractive risk diversifier.	Easing of monetary policy in the short term is becoming more likely as inflation is slowing.  Continued volatility and uncertainty.	Short-term treasury yields are attractive and the fund continues to hold 2-year US treasuries. We are more cautious on longer duration bonds as inflation and growth remain high and stronger-thanconsensus expectations.	10-year yield is trading around fair value at the moment – it will be influenced by short-term rates later in the year.
	Negative	Negative	Neutral	Negative	Negative
,	In general, there's still a period of higher rate resets ahead for developed real estate.	Higher bond yields are putting cap rates under pressure.  We remain cautious on commercial real estate, especially.	Global macro-economic uncertainty poses a risk.	No allocations to global property, given the uncertainty over property valuations, LTVs and refinancing needs.	Higher yields internationally remain a headwind for global property.
Ī	Negative	Neutral	Neutral	Positive	Negative
2 1	Valuations are well above average, with still elevated earnings expectations out to year-end. Risk of policy error remains as US Fed cuts are priced out.	We are worried about US valuations.  The rest of the world is more attractive, especially China.	The US is expensive. Japan is offering value. The rest of the world is offering select opportunities.	Valuations are above trend, and the market is historically narrow. However, the large investable universe provides ample opportunities.  Holdings are diversified both geographically and sectorally. Aside from the technology sector, exposure is not thematic but rather selected on bottom-up fundamentals.	Valuations remain full.  1. Negative view due to stretched valuations. 2. Highly concentrated market in the US, driven by AI sector strength. 3. Limited upside potential compared to other regions.

	Neutral	Neutral	Negative	Positive	Negative
Cash	Cash offers our clients a high real return.  Cash provides optionality - preserves our firing power and enables us to take advantage of opportunities as they arise.	High yields.	Although cash does not protect investors against inflation over the long term, it provides the safety of capital preservation – at least in nominal terms – while also providing us with the liquidity to invest when opportunities arise.  When the risk of capital loss on other assets rises substantially and correlations converge, cash serves as an appropriate temporary investment. We currently have limited exposure to cash in the portfolio.	Higher short-term interest rates have driven the expected real returns from short-term interest-bearing instruments to above trend.	Our portfolios remained tilted away from SA cash at quarterend, despite the attractive positive real cash rate.  We prefer better prospective riskadjusted returns from higher-risk asset classes such as SA equity and bonds. Furthermore, bonds should enjoy a re-rating and hence capital gains resulting in additional returns, while returns to cash decline, should interest rates start to fall.
	Negative	Neutral	Positive	Positive	Positive
Bonds	We are underweight long-term bonds relative to the ALBI. This poses a risk of rising yields on the back of a rise in government borrowing.	A positive election outcome does not automatically and immediately result in a significant improvement in our country's growth profile. We have a reasonable allocation to SA government and inflation-linked bonds, mostly in the belly of the curve, where we think the real riskadjusted returns are the most attractive.	Attractive valuations, sound monetary policy fundamentals and an improvement in sentiment support our positive view on the asset class despite concerns around further fiscal slippage.  In terms of selection, while we are only marginally longer than that of the ALBI from a duration perspective, our preference is for the belly and long end of the curve which offers the best risk-adjusted returns, in our view.	The yields on nominal bonds remain above trend and continue to offer strong real returns. We currently favour nominal bonds over inflation-linked bonds given their break-even yields.	We also did not change our overweight positioning in SA nominal bonds in our house-view portfolios.  Despite the fall in bond yields during the quarter, given their very elevated levels, real yields remain attractive compared to history, other global sovereign bonds, and other SA fixed-income assets.
	Neutral Neutral		Neutral	Neutral	Negative
Property	A high loan-to-value leverage, a lack of economic growth and high interest rates pose greater risk of loss of capital in property investments.	While the medium-term outlook for the property sector remains constrained, double-digit dividend yields on certain stocks is attractive.	The peaking interest rate cycle should turn from headwind to tailwind for the listed property sector over coming quarters.  The sector trades on a forward distributable income yield of c.10% and a c.30% discount to net asset value (NAV). However, on a sustainable earnings basis, likefor-like rental growth in SA is expected to remain muted over the coming year with deleveraging likely to dampen continued growth prospects.	We remain neutral on local property and, given the risk to valuations, continue to hold protection on a large portion of our exposure.	In Q2 we did not change our underweight exposure in SA listed property, although there are some indications that fundamentals are starting to improve.  The sector could also gain some impetus from expected interest rate cuts, but these hopes have been deferred in line with interest rate cut expectations over the quarter, so for now, we remain cautious.
	Positive	Positive	Positive	Positive	Positive
Equity	SA equities screen as cheap despite the lack of earnings growth. We see a fertile ground for selective, bottom-up stock pickers to succeed.	SA assets look cheap, but we remain selective. Our focus will continue to be on the longer-term outlook for these assets rather than positioning ourselves for short-term opportunities. A positive election outcome does not automatically and immediately result in a significant improvement in our country's growth profile.  Our domestic equity allocation comprises global businesses that are listed on the JSE, very specific commodity shares and robust domestic businesses that have reasonable growth prospects and can supplement their growth with good dividend yields.	From a top-down perspective, inflation, both global and local, has made substantial progress towards the target. This paved the way for central banks to indicate a halt in the interest rate hiking cycle which should support global trade and earnings for companies going forward.  The establishment of the Government of National Unity (GNU) provides the impetus for an improvement in government service delivery which should support a positive shift in overall consumer and business confidence.	Local equities continue to trade at a discount to intrinsic value, informing an expected return that is above trend. We continue to hold an overweight position in local equities with some downside protection, should any sharp corrections occur.	Our house-view funds still favoured SA equities at the end of Q2 2024.  SA equity valuations became less cheap during the quarter as share prices gained ground amid positive investor sentiment toward the outcome of the May national elections. The portfolios benefitted from their overweight position in banking stocks. We believe that conditions remain favourable for stock-picking.

	Neutral	Neutral	Negative	Neutral	Neutral
Cash	Investors can earn a real return on cash invested in developed markets. If the higher-for-longer view pens out as we expect, then investors can continue to earn good yields on cash.  Our neutral outlook is premised on the view that we are finding more attractive investment options offshore.	Yields are high.  High interest rates but favour other asset classes.	Although cash does not protect investors against inflation over the long term, it provides the safety of capital preservation – at least in nominal terms – while also providing us with the liquidity to invest when opportunities arise.  We have limited exposure to offshore cash at present.	We continue to underweight foreign cash given the expected returns from alternative assets.	We have retained a slight overweight position to global cash.
	Negative	Positive	Negative	Neutral	Positive
Bonds	Inflation in developed markets is expected to remain elevated, with interest rates remaining elevated. This is the downside to holding long-duration bonds.	Global corporate credit and holdings in US treasuries continue to generate a positive real yield and provide diversification in the portfolio's income category.  We do not favour developed market sovereign bonds in our portfolios.	Moderating inflation and declining interest rate expectations have provided support to bonds in most regions, painting a supportive backdrop for an asset class that has been struggling for the most part of the last three years.  From a relative return perspective, we saw better opportunities locally in 'SA Inc.' assets as valuations were attractive and negative expectations were bottoming. We therefore locked in profits from global bonds and used the proceeds to increase our domestic equity allocation.	The rerating in US treasuries has raised the nominal yields slightly above trend. The real returns on offer from foreign bonds remain insufficient to warrant an overweight position in our balanced funds. The foreign bond allocation in our absolute return funds has started to tilt towards US treasuries.	We have retained a slight overweight position to global bonds.  We did not change our long-duration positioning during the quarter. We continue holding some 30-year US Treasuries and moderate levels of local currency sovereign emerging market bonds where the real yields are high, and the currency is trading at fair-to-cheap levels. Our house-view portfolios were also still underweight global corporate credit at quarter-end, based on our view of credit spreads as unattractive for the risk involved vs their government counterparts.
	Negative	Neutral	Neutral	Positive	Neutral
Property	Lack of earnings growth is a major headwind. Rising interest rates had a negative impact on earnings. Work-from-home culture and digital shift raise the risk of further losses in office property.	Dynamic of improved interest rate outlook vs long-term debt repricing is still a balancing act.	Operationally, structural tailwinds in logistics (particularly the UK), residential and various alternative sectors including data centres, storage, healthcare, etc. all provide medium-term growth profiles that are highly attractive and act as a natural hedge to any possible inflation.  The global property exposure is expressed through a small position in a UK-listed logistics Real Estate Investment Trust (REIT) and American Tower Corp. These holdings have benefitted from the recent shift in expectations on the direction of global interest rates.	We remain positive on certain subsectors of the foreign property market.	We don't have a strong enough conviction on fundamentals at this stage to justify a departure from neutrality.
	Positive	Positive	Positive	Neutral	Neutral
Equity	Markets like the US are trading at expensive multiples. However, we are selective in our stock picks and are able to find undervalued shares.  Asian markets (Japan and South Korea) are trading at low multiples. Many of the listed shares have attractive fundamentals.	Global assets have rallied, but global growth prospects remain resilient, and we continue to find broad selection opportunities. These assets provide us with necessary diversification in our portfolios. Easing interest rates in response to slowing inflationary pressures should be supportive of global asset pricing.  Global equities may look stretched at an index level, particularly in the US, but stock picking and regional investment opportunities abound. In contrast to a very stagnant SA economy, global growth has been more resilient, and we are seeing significant secular changes in some industries. The allocation to companies operating in the global technology, payment processing, rail transport, and gaming and entertainment space provides us with exposure to these different drivers at reasonable valuations.	From a top-down perspective, global inflation levels have made substantial progress towards target levels, led by goods and energy prices, without large job losses.  This paved the way for central banks to indicate a halt in the interest rate hiking cycle which should support global trade and global earnings cycles going forward.	We continue to favour emerging market equities over developed markets and still hold some protection on a portion of our foreign equity exposure.	We remained broadly neutrally positioned in global equities, with an underlying underweight in the US market.  During Q2 we took profits on a portion of our overweight position in Chinese equities following the quarter's rally. Proceeds from the sale went to the purchase of US equities, reducing some of the existing underweight, and to increase our exposure to Mexican equities.

PLEASE NOTE: Attribution of portfolio returns is calculated using the average holding of an underlying fund over the quarter and year-to-date. No attribution of an underlying fund (#N/A) will reflect if a switch occurred during the quarter or in the year even if a fund class has been switched. Contribution of returns takes into account the performance of the underlying fund, its weight and holding period in the portfolio.
